FROM THE PODIUM

Welcome to the second concert of 2025 from the Plano Community Band. This has been a fun challenge in that we were anticipating sharing the program with another organization, but that fell through, leaving us with the task at hand of learning a full concert of repertoire on a condensed rehearsal cycle. The band enthusiastically and unsurprisingly rose to the challenge, and we are eager to share today with you.

In assembling the concert music, I knew we would grow together, and you would enjoy the finale piece, Give Us This Day, so much that it had to be the namesake for the entire program. What quickly revealed itself was the possibility of featuring different parts of the day as our unifying theme. While some of this is made obvious by the titles of the pieces, much is also developed programmatically by the composers' music itself. So, enjoy baseball music, a timely Sousa march, a powerful piece depicting innocence and loss, and the most famous tenor aria in all of opera performed beautifully by PCB euphonium soloist Aaron Hughes.

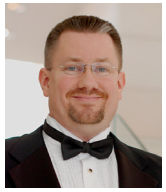

It is a joy to spend every Monday night with these committed amateur musicians and we are grateful that you join us for our public performances. We are particularly grateful to be joined by outstanding student chamber ensembles from the band programs at XYZ and ABC high schools – thank you for your outstanding performances today!
